DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This large 19th century house is in need of paint and the porch roof is beginning to suffer from deterioration. The frame house is basically symmetrical in design, two stories with a hip roof that rises to a ridge where there are two center chimneys. On the front are three bays and a one story porch supported by turned posts. The center bay, above the porch, is a projecting bay with a large dormer directly above. This dormer has a double window and is ornamented with rows of imbricated shingles that alternate with the siding. On the east and west facades are two story bay windows, each with a large dormer above similar to the one on the front of the house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

A large late 19th century dwelling, this house is potentially attractive, but badly in need of repair and paint. Typical of this era, are the imbricated shingles which ornament the large gabled dormers on the third story. Although Locust Street was once attractive, many of the homes, like this one, are in need of paint and repair work. It is also unfortunate that many of the trees which shaded the center blocks of Locust are now gone.
